Jack Hershey

John R. Hershey Jr.

JULY 9, 1925-JUNE 27, 2012

John R. "Jack" Hershey Jr., who had an active role in the area's business, civic and philanthropic life, died Wednesday, June 27, 2012, at Meritus Medical Center, surrounded by members of his family.

Born July 9, 1925, Jack was the son of J. Raymond Hershey Sr., and Sally Jeanette Hershey.

Jack attended Lehigh University, where he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration and graduated in three years. Jack served in the U.S. Air Force in Italy in World War II, and later became a lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. Jack was employed by Siegal, Berg and Co., CPA, in Allentown, Pa., while matriculating at Lehigh.

Upon graduation, he accepted an offer from E.I. DuPont de Nemours, and he and wife Anna resided in Wilmington, Del., for two years. He entered the investment industry in 1951 with Cohu and Co. In 1955, he joined Walston & Co., and, in 1960, he joined Winslow, Cohu & Stetson as a vice president. In 1969, he affiliated with Ferris & Co., as a senior vice president, regional officer, and later became a member of the board of directors. Ferris later acquired the prominent Baltimore-based firm of Baker, Watts.

He is survived by his wife of 64 years, Anna Leiter Hershey; three daughters, Karen Anne Spessard of Hagerstown, Lynne Hershey Rieden of Herndon, Va., Cheryl Leiter Hershey and husband, Wiley S. Rutledge, of Point of Rocks, Md.; and one son, John R. Hershey III of Hagerstown, Md. He is also survived by two grandsons, Gerry Wayne Spessard and John Holden Hershey; and four granddaughters, Julie Spessard Ebersole and husband, Daniel P. Ebersole, Laura Hershey Spessard, Jennifer Lynne Rieden and London Nicole Hershey.

He was predeceased by one brother, Richard K. Hershey.

Jack was a member of the Tower Society at Lehigh, and a member of Phi Delta Theta national fraternity.

He initiated efforts that resulted in legislation authorizing a left turn on a red light in Maryland, and was standing behind the governor when he signed the bill into law.

He was elected for a three-year term on the executive committee of the Securities Industry Association, Mid-Atlantic District, at their annual meeting at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. The SIA is a major trade organization representing more than 550 brokerage and investment banking firms in North America. The Mid-Atlantic District covers North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Washington, D.C.

Mr. Hershey participated with the Rotary Exchange Fellowship program, during which time his son, John, enjoyed a guest from France.

Jack R. Hershey Jr. was The Herald-Mail Person of the Year in 2005.

Mr. Hershey was active in bank acquisitions. He recommended more than 50 banks that were eventually taken over by larger banks.

RESEARCH, a national financial industry publication located in San Francisco, Calif., commented in an April 1997 issue on Mr. Hershey's industry knowledge: "Jack is the bank stock guy. Jack has sniffed out 28 bank takeovers."

Hershey has been quoted in The Baltimore Sun, Washington Post and Maryland Business

Record, as well as The Herald-Mail and the Frederick News Post. In an article from the Wall Street Transcript, a national publication, Mr. Hershey participated in a several-page discussion regarding many banks and future investment opportunities.

A national financial industry publication titled Registered Representative published a lengthy article about Mr. Hershey and banks.

He was the chairman of the shareholders advisory committee of the Bank of Baltimore.

In cooperation with the school system, he stimulated student interest in "The Stock Market Game" through a simulated economic game.

In 1951, when Mr. Hershey became a broker, the Dow Jones industrial average was 269. It now stands at 12,515.

He and his wife were co-chair of a flamboyant costume ball attracting more than 5,000 people in the Valley Mall. An event which included three nationally known bands as Washington County celebrated its 200th anniversary (bicentennial).

Mr. Hershey played an integral role in the chamber of commerce, particularly in 1969 when he was president, as he encouraged the chamber to make some changes. "Let's do away with separate city and county government. Let's streamline our administrative bodies," he said.

He was chairman of the board of JRH Inc., a family investment firm, which announced the purchase of Holshu Welch Insurance Agency in Cumberland, Md.

John and Anna relished having visited every continent in the world, and always very much enjoyed traveling.

Mr. Hershey served on the board of directors of Victor Products Corp.

Mr. Hershey was the "Hagerstown Town & Country Almanack" managing partner for 22 years.

He served on the church council at Trinity Lutheran Church, as well as numerous committees over a lifetime. He was president and a member of the board of directors of the YMCA for 12 years. He served as a member of the board of trustees for the YMCA for 30 years. He was instrumental in raising funds to build the new YMCA. He recently was honored by being named trustee emeritus.

Mr. Hershey was a past president and member of the board of directors of the Hagerstown Rotary Club. Jack was a 50-year member of the club, and has four Paul Harris Fellows awards. In 1979 he invited Bud Wilkinson, Coach of the Year 1949, to the Rotary regional conference.

Mr. Hershey was a past president, treasurer and member of the board of governors of Fountain Head Country Club.

Mr. Hershey served on the board of directors of Dutchie, Inc.

Mr. Hershey was a past president, treasurer and member of the board for San Mar Children's Home. He served 17 years and was honored as a director emeritus, one of only two persons so honored in the history of San Mar.

Mr. Hershey was a past president and current member of the board for Rose Hill Cemetery for 51 years. He had the privilege of chauffeuring President Dwight Eisenhower, Gov. J. Millard Tawes and Sen. Charles Mathias in his 1962 black Cadillac convertible, during the 100-year Civil War celebration.

Mr. Hershey was a past treasurer and member of the executive committee for the Mason-Dixon Council of the Boy Scouts. He was honored by being included in the Borders of Men Historical Gallery at Sinoquipe. Mr. Hershey was a past member of the executive committee for the United Way, formerly United Fund, of Washington County and the Community Chest.

Mr. Hershey was a past trustee of the Community Foundation of Washington County, Md. He also was a past trustee of the Lutheran Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa.

He was a member of American Legion Post 42 and the Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks Lodge 378, both of Hagerstown.

He was a member of the Assembly Club. He was one of the original nine of the local Nine and Ninety Social Organization.

Most recently, he was a member of the foundation committee, Meritus Health Service, an affiliate of Meritus Medical Center.

He was inducted in 1993 into "Maryland Senior Citizens Hall of Fame".

In 1979 he invited Bud Wilkinson, Coach of the Year 1949 to the Rotary Regional Conference.

Representing Lehigh University, he took part in the processional for the inauguration of Shirley Peterson, Hood College's seventh president.

Mr. Hershey played basketball for Hagerstown High School, and in 1943 earned the distinction of the leading scorer.

As a member of the Rotary Club, Mr. Hershey invited such distinguished speakers as Sen. Mathias, Sen. Beall, Congressman Byron, Gov. Lee, Gov. Hughes and Attorney General Sachs, as well as the Minister of Commerce, Embassy of India, Ravindra Jeratm.

On March 25, 2011, Jack and Anna Hershey were honored for their service and generosity to our community at a gala tribute held at Hagerstown Community College's Athletic, Recreation and Community Center. The event was extraordinary in that a record attendance of 570 was established, along with income of $164,400 for the student aid program. The Hersheys were presented with a citation from Gov. Martin O'Malley "in recognition of their commitment and leadership on behalf of the Hagerstown community, in appreciation of the contributions they have made to numerous organizations and charitable causes, giving of their time and talent to make a positive difference in the lives of others, and the people of Maryland join in expressing our admiration and great respect as you are honored for your outstanding service to our state."

Jack and his wife made significant gifts, often anonymously, to many local charities, including the YMCA, Washington County Hospital Building Fund, and Girls, Inc., and they established the Jack and Anna Hershey Foundation.

Service will be held at Trinity Lutheran Church, 15 Randolph Ave., Hagerstown, MD 21740, at 11 a.m. on Monday, July 2.

Jack donated his body to the Anatomy Board of Maryland for the benefit of medical education and research at Maryland hospitals and/or universities. Burial in Rose Hill Cemetery will be at the convenience of the family.

The family will receive friends on Sunday, July 1, at Minnich Funeral Home, 415 E. Wilson Blvd., Hagerstown, MD 21740, from 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the charity of your choice, or to the Jack and Anna Hershey Foundation, 113 S. Potomac St., Hagerstown, MD 21740.

In the event you choose the foundation, you may direct your contribution to the local charity of your choice. The foundation will equal the amount of your gift not exceeding $5,000 for the next three years in your name. Matching contributions must be made within 30 days and are subject to certain restrictions, limitations and final approval by trustees.

The Herald-Mail's Person of the year

John R. Hershey Jr. takes home this year's honor

John R. Hershey Jr., The Herald-Mail's 2005 Person of the Year.

By ANDREW SCHOTZ
andrews@herald-mail.com

Prompted to jog his mind back almost 70 years to a mischievous moment, John R. Hershey Jr. instinctively laughed.

He couldn't deny what his friend Donovan Beachley Jr. alleged, for it was true.

This was Beachley's recollection of Hershey, from their early years in school: "He was a real hell-raiser. If there was any trouble to get into, he'd get into it."

The indiscretions were minor — making too much noise in class, annoying the teacher — but they were the essence of an aimless boy.

"I did not have much direction at that time ...," Hershey said. "I wasn't a particularly good student. I wasn't interested. I wasn't dedicated."

It was after he enlisted in the Air Force during World War II, sometime during a 25-month tour in Italy, that his outlook changed.

The Hershey of today offered this snappy analysis: "I think I saw the officer lifestyle," which was more appealing than the enlisted man's lifestyle.

He punctuated his thought with one of his bolts of laughter, which magnetically pull you into the humor of the moment.

The hearty laugh signals the Jack Hershey people know, probably for his globe-trotting adventurousness, camaraderie or financial wizardry with the investment banking firm of Ferris, Baker Watts Inc. in Hagerstown.

For being a man neither egotistical nor shy about hundreds of thousands of dollars he and his wife have given and promised to community causes.

"I became a committed fellow ...," said Hershey, 80, a lifelong Hagerstown resident. "I believe strongly in being committed to wife and family. I believe strongly in being committed to work. I believe strongly in being committed to contributions to your community.

"Where do they rank? They all rank No. 1."

Which helps explain why today one more thing is true: Hershey is The Herald-Mail's 2005 Person of the Year.

Honorees 'get out there and get involved'

After a New Year's Eve of "Auld Lang Syne" comes a New Year's Day of accolades The Herald-Mail way.

This is the seventh straight year that a profile of the newspaper's Person of the Year has anchored the front of the Jan. 1 edition.

"The newspaper, by nature, (has) to report a lot of the things that don't go right in the community," Publisher John League said. "We want to start each year focusing and get involved," League said. "They say yes to the things that 99 percent of the community say no to."

The newspaper received about 30 to 35 entries from the community, he said.

A group of Herald-Mail employees — including the company's top contributors to United Way of Washington County — winnowed the pool to a handful of finalists.

A committee of 12 community leaders and past Person of the Year honorees picked Hershey's six predecessors, from earliest to most recent, are: John Waltersdor, Norman Shea, Mike Calas, Art Callahan, James G. Pierné and John F. Barr.

The Herald-Mail gives each winner a crystal bowl and $1,000 to donate to a civic cause.

Hershey asked for his $1,000 to be split: $500 to San Mar Children's Home in Boodsboro and $500 to the Hagerstown YMCA, both of which have building projects

Hershey: Person of the year

Commitment: community

For the purposes of this award, Hershey's philosophy is best examined in reverse order — especially with breaking news on the "contributions to community" front.

On Dec. 20, Hershey and his wife, Anna Leiter Hershey, reached an agreement to give $250,000 to a capital campaign for a new Washington County Hospital.

A matching grant by the Waltersdorf/Henson Endowment Challenge will make the gift worth $500,000.

The result will be The Jack and Anna Hershey Education Center, as it might be known, a place for classes and seminars for the public and training sessions for Washington County Health System employees.

As a board member of Antietam Healthcare Foundation, the Health System's fundraising arm, Jack Hershey "wanted to get in and get started," said Sandy Pollack, the foundation's executive director.

The capital campaign is just starting, with a goal of $15 million to $18 million. As an early contributor, Pollack said, Hershey wanted to be a model for others.

Hershey agreed and said he'll talk about what he does only to generate momentum. "When I (solicit) a contribution to my charity organization, I make mine first," he said.

Hershey said he and David Beachley each gave $250,000 to the Hagerstown YMCA, where an aquatic center bears their surnames.

Jack and Anna Hershey also are starting a scholarship program for Washington County Public Schools students. They are giving $20,000 a year for five years — a total of $100,000 — to help students who go to Lehigh University, which is his alma mater, and Cedar Crest College, which is hers.

"We're just trying to stimulate a little interest" in the colleges, Jack Hershey said.

Then, there was the time in 1992 when the Hersheys tried to quietly make a donation to United Way of Washington County, late in the annual campaign.

The couple pledged to match contributions up to $15,000, which they did. At first, they were anonymous, but their identities later were made known.

"I wanted them to reach their goal," Jack Hershey remembered this month.

The Person of the Year nomination letter sent by his son, John R. Hershey III, lists many of Jack Hershey's involvements and community causes, running onto a second page.

The YMCA, Hagerstown Rotary Club, Fountain Head Country Club, San Mar Children's Home, the Chamber of Commerce, Rose Hill Cemetery, Mason-Dixon Council of the Boy Scouts, the United Way, the Community Foundation of Washington County.

Hershey said he didn't have to worry about taking the first step into volunteerism. One organization will ask, then another, and word will get around that you're someone who will help.

"If you do a good job," he said, "they'll come after you. It gives you a certain amount of satisfaction."

Commitment: work

Hershey received a bachelor's degree in business administration at Lehigh University. His first job was as an accountant for the DuPont Corp. in Wilmington, Del.

He remembers coming home to Hagerstown and seeing a local broker paint "a dazzling picture" of the industry. He joined.

In a series of changes in jobs and affiliations, which he likened to free agency in baseball, Hershey went from one firm to a second to a third, which included some of the old partners from the first one.

When the last firm developed "operational problems," as he put it, Hershey and some colleagues sought a new firm to be a part of. In 1970, they saw George M. Ferris Jr. at Ferris & Co. in Washington, D.C.

Ferris recalls that he "wasn't terribly interested" in expanding into Western Maryland. Nonetheless, he followed Hershey back to Hagerstown, and was impressed.

"Back then, Jack Hershey was Mr. Hagerstown ...," he said. "He was very much a doer. He had seemed to touch everything in Hagerstown."

Ferris called Hershey "a tremendous expert on regional banks" during his 30 years with Ferris, Baker Watts, where he was a senior vice president.

"I'm really a value investor," Hershey said. "I like to buy stocks that someone will be interested (in) at higher prices."

The key, he said, was to anticipate when one bank was going to take over another. In a 25-year period, that happened 42 times, he said.

Here, Hershey's attitude is captured in the words of colorful former baseball pitcher Dizzy Dean, who said something like "It ain't bragging if you can back it up."

Hershey pointed to a set of six predictions about bank takeovers as part of a 1999 profile in The Herald-Mail. Four were taken over.

"The fundamentals that he followed (were) buy book value, buy persistent growth, buy consistently rising dividends, buy fund value, and then sit back and watch," John R. Hershey III, a senior vice president and branch manager for Ferris, Baker Watts, said of his father.

He said his father's slogan

"I became a committed fellow ... I believe strongly in being committed to wife and family. I believe strongly in being committed to work. I believe strongly in being committed to contributions to your community.

"Where do they rank? They all rank No. 1."

was "sit back and wait for the big pop," referring to a takeover.

The younger Hershey said he got a sense of his father's knowledge and conviction on Oct. 19, 1987. The stock market had crashed, but, that afternoon, Jack Hershey was sitting at his desk and putting in buy orders.

Just hearing Jack Hershey suggest a stock was reason enough to invest, longtime friend and client Dr. George Manger said. "I'd say, 'Jack, pick me up 1,000 shares, or more,'" Manger said.

"He's probably made more people rich in Hagerstown than any person ever," said Donovan Beachley Jr., the friend from way back.

Commitment: wife and family (and friends)

Jack and Anna, the parents of four children, will have been married for 58 years by the end of January.

"We have a lot of things in common," Anna said. "We grew up in the same neighborhood. We played Kick the Can together.

"We've had a good life. I respect Bear. That's my nickname for him, Teddy Bear."

Anna, who will be 79 in February, is sticking to her theory that Jack followed her to the Allentown, Pa., area when she went to college. Jack, whose college was in nearby Bethlehem, Pa., smiled when he heard it again.

Anna said they've survived together despite having opposite personalities. "I'm more laid-back. He's a go-getter," she said. "It's a good combination."

As diversified as his father's life was, John R. Hershey III said he never thought of him as "stretched." There always was time for Little League, a Baltimore Colts game or hunting.

The younger Hershey remembers his family traveling to far-off places together. They went to a dude ranch in Jackson Hole, Wyo. They rode horses through the Grand Tetons. They saw Hawaii.

Wherever they went, within a few hours, his father had scooped up brochures, ready to fully plan the rest of the trip, John R. Hershey III said.

"He's an inveterate world traveler," Manger said. "He has been everywhere."

Many places the Hersheys have seen more than once. Russia three times. Scandinavia three times.

They did a 38-day cruise around Africa and another that took them to Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand and other countries.

Hershey animatedly told the story of a Nepal trip that included crawling along the ground to see a Bengal tiger. "On the way back, I said, 'Don't they travel in pairs? Where's the other one?'"

Out comes another crackle of laughter.

Hershey is continuing to travel despite a rough patch of ill health that started in 1998 with a four-way heart bypass. That was followed by rotator cuff surgery on each arm, two knee-replacement surgeries and the removal of a kidney. This past August, his gall bladder was removed.

"He's really motivated," said Donovan Beachley Jr., who started playing golf with Hershey about 50 years ago. "He doesn't let a little thing like that get in the way."

Hershey said he is back on the tennis court again every Saturday and still plays golf.

"He just keeps coming back," Manger said.

"He's so committed in everything he does," said Dr. Breese Dickinson, who started playing golf and tennis with Hershey in the 1960s.

"Don't just sit there. Do it," John R. Hershey III remembers hearing his father say while growing up.

Hershey is part of a poker group that started around 1955, too.

"It's about as competitive as you can get for a nickel and a dime," Beachley said.

Low-stakes gambling and high-stakes philanthropy.

The desire to go everywhere. Promoting education and physical fitness.

Those are the essence of the adult Jack Hershey.

"I thought about all that he's done for other people, whether it's family, business or community," John R. Hershey III said of nominating his father for Person of the Year.

"A person's contributions," Jack Hershey said, "should be time and talent and money. Or financial — that's a little softer word."

John R. "Jack" Hershey Jr. dies at 86

By DAVE McMILLION

John R. "Jack" Hershey Jr., who died Wednesday, was known for his flair in the financial industry and his deep involvement in the community.

But he also had a sense of humor.

Jerry Spessard, business manager of J. Gruber's "Hagerstown Town & Country Almanack," related a story Thursday to show how Hershey's unique outlook on life made for lasting memories.

In the 1960s, Hershey was in charge of a Valentine's Day dance at the Fountain Head Country Club when fire broke out in the building, Spessard said.

He said Hershey told him that women were panicking and grabbing their valuable furs to make sure they weren't lost in the fire, which ended up torching a ballroom, bar, dining room and golf shop.

Hershey sought to calm down the crowd and convinced a band playing at the event to perform "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," Spessard said.

"He played hard but he also worked hard," he said. "Everything he did, he put 100 percent into."

Hershey, 86, was known for his devotion to the community, serving on more than 10 boards, clubs and organizations over the years.

He and his wife, Anna, were generous with their money, too, agreeing at one point to donate $250,000 for a new Washington County hospital.

Hershey and David Beachley each gave $250,000 to the Hagerstown YMCA, where an aquatic center bears their surnames. Hershey and his wife also gave to Girls Inc. of Washington County.

El DuPont de Nemours after graduating from college, but Spessard recalled how he talked about being a people person and wanting to find a different job.

Hershey went into the investment industry in the 1950s and started going door-to-door selling stocks, said Spessard, Hershey's former son-in-law.

Hershey family adds four new endowed scholarships

Hagerstown Community College recently announced the addition of four new endowed scholarships due to the generosity of Jack and Anna Hershey, both of Hagerstown.

The Hershey family donated more than $120,000 in proceeds from the HCC Foundation Tribute Dinner, held annually in March in HCC's Athletic, Recreation and Community Center.

Each year, members of the HCC Foundation recognize philanthropists and community leaders for their dedication and efforts to improve life in Washington County. Jack and Anna Hershey were honored at the 2011 Tribute Dinner and chose to donate the proceeds to HCC for two academic and two athletic student scholarships, each of which is named after one of their four children: Karen Spessard, Cheryl Leiter Hershey, John R. Hershey III and Lynne Hershey Rieden.

"Hagerstown is indeed fortunate to have one of the best, if not the best, community colleges in the entire country," Jack Hershey said.

"The college's growth and progress is absolutely outstanding and its physical facilities are better than that of most colleges and universities," he said. "Academically, when there is a need, the need will be satisfied by HCC. It is a pleasure to support HCC's financial aid program."

For more information about the HCC Foundation or student scholarships, contact Lieba Cohen, HCC director, institutional advancement, at 301-790-2800, ext. 213, or email ljcohen@hagerstowncc.edu.

To the editor:

Over the last few weeks, I have thought about and discussed with others the loss of John R. Hershey Jr. As so many have expressed, Jack was a terrific husband, father and grandfather, a wonderful citizen of Washington County, and an astute and very successful financial expert.

He generously became a local philanthropist who made our small part of the world a better place through his many contributions of time and money to important local needs. Although much has already been said about his many local charitable donations, I wanted to add my thoughts to the chorus of praise for Jack Hershey and share my perspective on why he was an extraordinary individual.

Most importantly, I urge our community to long remember him as a role model for community citizenship, always being proud of the many wonderful aspects of Washington County and doing so many things publicly and behind the scenes to assist persons in need. He was a local champion for many nonprofits to advance their mission and serve so many community members.

He even planned that after his passing the Jack and Anna Hershey Foundation would match gifts to local nonprofits for 30 days after his death. This says so much about who Jack was, and for many of us, it further ignites our praise and gratitude that will never fade away.

Jack and his family were extremely generous in helping HCC raise funds for endowed scholarships. I'm so proud that each and every year forward, a number of HCC students will be beneficiaries of the Hershey family scholarships.

The college plans to share with these students the Jack Hershey story so they, too, can more fully appreciate the man responsible for helping them afford a college education. My wife, Sue, and I, from the day we met Jack, always considered him, with his sparking eyes and upbeat spirit, as one of the most enthusiastic Washington County cheerleaders one could find.

Jack's involvement with HCC said so much about who he was. He was a man for all seasons, and for all the right reasons. He regularly visited the HCC Foundation Office, the ARCC and the alumni amphitheater in recent years. Being generous with his contributions to support college academics, watching basketball games and enjoying the summer military band concerts were all part of Jack's interest in HCC.

In fact, three days before his death, Jack was at the campus amphitheater enjoying a concert and sharing his love for the special things in life that made him so exceptional. He expressed to me on a number of occasions how pleased he was to see HCC's expansive growth over the last 10 years, and how important a low-cost and high-quality community college was to the economic, cultural and human development of Washington County.

As we position the memories of Jack in our long-term community consciousness, I urge all of us to remember him laughing and smiling with his eyes dancing with interest and excitement, in a way that was uniquely Jack. I'm certain his family and friends will long hear Jack's spirit saying, "Smile and be happy and don't grieve for me."

We should all adopt Jack's approach to living a fulfilling and generous life, and also strive to be positive right up to the day that our God calls us home.

The world was a better place with Jack Hershey

On or around Independence Day I like to write about freedom, patriots, our military or veterans; this year I didn't.

John R. "Jack" Hershey, Jr. passed away on June 27 and was memorialized on July 2; I was honored to attend the memorial service. But Jack's passing put me in a funk. I don't know why, it just did.

Jack and I were friends — oh, I wasn't his best friend, yet over the past 10 to 15 years I was proud to declare Jack as a friend. And like literally thousands of others I always felt that Jack considered me a friend. That's just the way Jack was. I remember one of his birthday celebrations — Jack and Anna literally rented Fort Ritchie for the day, where hundreds of his friends were welcomed to fete Jack on achieving another milestone.

I was awed as I stood for a few minutes and watched Jack greet each of his guests with a hug or a handshake and each guest, for at least that moment, knew they were Jack's best friend. Jack knew how to make friends and also how to be a friend.

Many of those best friends can tell far more stories about Jack than I can tell, but one in particular comes to my mind. Jack owned several pieces of rental property and on one occasion he rented a store front to a fledgling entrepreneur.

The renter was from out of town and didn't know much about the area. So Jack wanted to do a big grand opening for the business and he invited several local dignitaries — the "A" list — to attend. Me, I was on the "B" list in my role as executive director of the Greater Hagerstown Committee.

Art Callaham

Comes the day of the grand opening and several of us "B-listers" were standing around drinking punch and eating cookies when we notice that none of the dignitaries were present. Totally undeterred, Jack hustles those present to the front of the store, makes the introductions of the new and proud owners and then looks over at me and says: "Art, come over and say a few words of welcome to these new business folks." Uhhhhh, well who could ever refuse Jack Hershey, so on behalf of the dignitaries who didn't show, I gave my standard "elevator speech" about economic development, business success and jobs.

Still undeterred, Jack calls out one of my business cohorts, Brien Poffenberger, to come forward and welcome the folks to our community for the Chamber of Commerce. Two B list speeches made a new business owner feel extremely happy and welcome, and also made Jack a new lifelong friend.

As was related to me by many attending his memorial service, "Jack had a way (a good way) with people."

I could write for hours about Jack Hershey, but I want to relate Jack's passing to Independence Day, at least as it surfaced in my mind when I heard Jack had passed on.

Fifty-six men signed the Declaration of Independence, actually on July 2, 1776 (the Declaration was approved on July 4), and in so doing pledged everything, even their own lives, to make this country free. That's pretty heavy duty stuff!

Those 56 were the true patriots of our country. As I sat in the memorial service for Jack Hershey, I reflected on the passing of those 56 patriots who on that same day, July 2, 236 years earlier stood around a table and possibly signed their lives away to make America a freer and better place in which to live.

No, I'll not make Jack into a national patriot. However, if you consider our local community and those who would sign and pledge to make it a better place in which to live, many of us would have listed Jack among the ready, willing and able signers.

The author Thomas Harris in his best-selling 1988 novel "The Silence of the Lambs" penned one of my favorite quotes. The individual speaking was the arch villain Hannibal Lecter and he was talking to the book's heroine, Clarice Starling.

Clarice, who was trailing Lecter, asked Lecter if he would "come after" her. Lecter responded: "... Clarice, the world is a better place with you in it."

As I have reflected on the passing of several of our community's best and finest, on July 2 of this year, I once again looked up and quietly paraphrased Harris: "Jack, the world was a better place, with you in it." We'll miss you.

Gerald Hicks' life centered around family, teaching, enjoying music and fine arts, and enriching others' lives

Editor's note: Each Sunday, The Herald-Mail will run "A Life Remembered." The story will take a look back at a member of the community who died in the past week through the eyes of family, friends, co-workers and others. Today's "A Life Remembered" is about Gerald Hicks, who died June 10 at the age of 81. His obituary appeared in the June 12 edition of The Herald-Mail.

FUNKSTOWN — Wilda Hicks said her husband, Gerald, would get up in the morning most days and say, "I want to do something for someone today."

And he would, enriching the lives of those he encountered as well as his own.

Gerald Hicks, 81, died June 10. His life centered around family, teaching, and enjoying music and fine arts, as well as lending his support and energy to helping those who needed help.

It was his love of knowledge and books that landed him the love of his life more than a half century ago.

"I was working at the Washington County Free Library in Hagerstown in 1953 when Gerald came in," Wilda said, reminiscing about her late husband this week at their Funkstown home.

In later years, Gerald would tell people that he came in for a book and got the librarian instead, Wilda said.

With a master's degree in education and a brief stint teaching in "regular high schools," Gerald joined the faculty at the Maryland Correctional Training Center and stayed here for 31 years.

Twin brother Jerry, who now lives in Nebraska, said both boys were named after their late father, who also was named Jerry.

"I was Jerry Jr. and Gerald was always called Gerald, not Jerry," he said.

The twins went to college together, taught history and English, and served in the U.S. Army together. While stationed in England, they got involved in the military band — Jerry on the baritone and Gerald on both the French horn and trumpet.

Through the years, the family stayed close through the annual Hicks family reunions and through letters.

"Gerald wrote great letters," his brother said.

When Gerald and Wilda moved into their home on Cemetery Street in 1955, they settled into a lifestyle filled with community activities at the Washington County Museum of Fine Arts, the Hagerstown Community Concert Association and the Maryland Symphony Orchestra.

"Gerald just loved going to the Antietam Battlefield each July 4 for the symphony performance," Wilda said.

Through his support of the Washington County Association for Retarded Citizens, Gerald saw the need for more fun activities for those clients and organized an annual Halloween costume party, which was held for at least 10 years.

"Last year, we couldn't do it and no one else took it on," Wilda said.

In declining health since a fall in 1999, Gerald spent the last six months of his life at the Fahrney-Keedy Home and Village near Boonsboro. Even though he wanted to be back home, his family said Gerald did enjoy the company of the other residents there.

"He was a very giving person, mild-mannered and easy to get along with," his brother said.

COLUMBUS — Jerry Hicks, 86, of Columbus, died Tuesday, May 26, 2009, at his home in Columbus.

Funeral services will be 11 a.m. on Friday at Trinity Lutheran Church in Columbus with Pastor Doug Zurek officiating. Interment with military honors will be at 2 p.m. on Friday in the Wisner Cemetery in Wisner.

Visitation will be 4-7 p.m. Thursday at the Gass Haney Funeral Home and continue at 10 a.m. Friday until service time at the church. There will be a 10:45 a.m. family prayer service Friday at the church. Memorials are directed to the Erna R. Badstieber Paws & Claws Adoption Center.

Jerry Hicks was born April 24, 1923, in Hagerstown, Md., to Jeremiah and Pearl (Carl) Hicks. He graduated from Hagerstown High School, Bridgewater College in Virginia, and earned his Master's in Education from the University of Maryland. Jerry served in the United States Army from Nov. 23, 1948, to Dec. 5, 1949, and again from Oct. 20, 1950, to Oct. 23, 1951. He was united in marriage to Doris Herman on Aug. 28, 1960, in Omaha. Jerry taught school in Maryland for several years before beginning his teaching career in the State Penitentiary's in Maryland. He later taught at the Lorton Reformatory in Virginia, retiring in 1980.

Upon his retirement, Jerry and Doris moved to Columbus to be near Doris's family. Jerry did substitute teaching for several school districts in the area for a number of years. He enjoyed reading, sports, dancing, coaching little league baseball and music. Jerry played for several years in the Columbus Community Band and the Mulligan Stew Band. But nothing would bring him more joy than taking care of "man's best friend." For years, you could see Jerry walking his dogs up and down Third Avenue year round. He was a life member of the VFW and the American Legion. Jerry found happiness in making others smile by just a smile and a wave. Do not grieve for him, share a smile and wave with a stranger for yourself.

Jerry is survived by his wife, Doris Hicks of Columbus; son, Paul Herman Hicks of Columbus; daughter-in-law, Elizabeth Churata Bejar Hicks of Arequipa, Peru; sister-in-law, Wilda Hicks of Funkstown, Md.; brother-in-law, Harry Snook of Hagerstown, Md.; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Jerry was preceded in death by his parents, Jeremiah and Pearl Hicks; sister, Floretta Newkirk; sister, Virginia Snook; brother, Carl Hicks and twin brother, Gerald Hicks.

not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me;
Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me; Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies;

Thou anointest my head with oil,
my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life;
and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Jerry Hicks was born April 24, 1923, in Hagerstown, Maryland, to Jeremiah and Pearl (Carl) Hicks. He graduated from Hagerstown High School, Bridgewater College in Virginia, and earned his Master's in Education from the University of Maryland. Jerry served in the United States Army from November 23, 1948 to December 5, 1949, and again from October 20, 1950 to October 23, 1951. He was united in marriage to Doris Herman on August 28, 1960, in Omaha, Nebraska. Jerry taught school in Maryland for several years before beginning his teaching career in the State Penitentiary's in Maryland. He later taught at the Lorton Reformatory in Virginia, retiring in 1980. Upon his retirement, Jerry and Doris moved to Columbus, Nebraska, to be near Doris's family. Jerry did substitute teaching for several school districts in the area for a number of years. He enjoyed reading, sports, dancing, coaching little league baseball, and music. Jerry played for several years in the Columbus Community Band and the Mulligan Stew Band. But nothing would bring him more joy than taking care of "man's best friend". For years, you could see Jerry walking his dogs up and down Third Avenue year round. He was a life member of the VFW and the American Legion. Jerry found happiness in making others smile by just a smile and a wave. Do not grieve for him, share a smile and wave with a stranger for yourself.

Jerry is survived by:

Wife - Doris Hicks of Columbus, NE
Son - Paul Herman Hicks of Columbus, NE
Daughter-in-law - Elizabeth Churata Bejar Hicks of Arequipa, Peru
Sister-in-law - Wilda Hicks of Funkstown, MD
Brother-in-law - Harry Snook of Hagerstown, MD
Numerous nieces and nephews

Jerry was preceded in death by:

Parents - Jeremiah and Pearl Hicks
Sister - Floretta Newkirk
Sister - Virginia Snook
Brother - Carl Hicks
Twin Brother - Gerald Hicks

Jean Elizabeth Clark, 84

DEC. 9, 1925-MARCH 30, 2010

Jean Elizabeth Clark entered into God's eternal care on Tuesday, March 30, 2010. She was 84 years old.

Jean was born in Hagerstown on 9 Dec., 1925, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Highbarger.

The former Jean Highbarger graduated from Hagerstown High School in the class of 1943 and earned her Bachelor of Science degree in 1947 from the University of Maryland, where she was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Alpha Lamda Delta honorary fraternity.

That year, she married Herbert E. Clark, who was a student also. After graduation, she was employed by the C&P Telephone of Washington, D.C., for several years.

Her husband graduated from the University of Maryland in 1949 and because of his career as an Army officer, the couple moved frequently. Their older daughter was born in Hagerstown; another daughter and son, in Georgia. Following a period of living in many states and three years in the Panama Canal Zone, the family returned to Washington County.

At that time, Jean began working with her optometrist father, as an optician. She was also secretary and a vice-president of the Negley Realty Corporation. Fol-

Hagerstown woman starts local college program for seniors at ripe age of 85

Scholarship at HCC is named after Carolyn Hill, available for Md. seniors

HAGERSTOWN — Hagerstown Community College is hoping that 85-year-old student Carolyn Hill will inspire other senior citizens to pursue the dream of higher education. Named in her honor, a special scholarship now exists at HCC for Washington County residents who are 72 years of age or older and wish to pursue a first college degree.

Hill, a Hagerstown resident, recently completed the external diploma program nearly 70 years after dropping out of high school. This fall, she began taking her first college-level classes at HCC.

"I've been dreaming about going back to school all my life," Hill said. "When you're young and earning $11 a week, you think that's all you need. Now, I'm anxious to see how much I can do. I like to stay busy and I love to learn."

An inspiration

Hill has begun her college experience with a ceramics class, but hopes to take public speaking, after hearing what a good job she did with her commencement address at the adult education ceremony. She's even inspired her 79-year-old brother to take a class at HCC.

"Ms. Hill has been such an inspiration to many that we wanted to do something to honor her hard work and enthusiasm," said HCC President Guy Altieri. "Creating a scholarship in her name seemed an appropriate way to do that."

ship provides up to $750 per year to cover the cost of credit course related fees, books, and materials — tuition is free for area seniors. Recipients must be residents of Washington County, 72 years of age or older, pursuing a first college degree, and have submitted a written statement of their educational intent.

Dear Elva Jean,

In the past five years Joe, the children and I (?) have been bitten by the "ski bug" so spend most of the winter week-ends on the slopes of Vermont and New Hampshire. We come to Hagerstown often to see my folks and liking to travel have taken trips to Texas, California, Mexico + Canada.

After the reunion we're planning to visit Betty Poffenberger Zajick ('43) and family in Sanibel, Florida.

Since the children are in school I keep busy teaching three and four year old deaf children the elements of speech.

Hope to see you at the reunion.

Sincerely,
